

Hello Magazine

8th November 2010

Socialite Alexandra Escat was the belle of the ball in London last week. The 25 year old- who hit the headlines over the summer when she was snapped holidaying with the Duke of York – attended a benefit for the Toos Foundation where she chatted with the charity’s founder, Lady Jamileh Kharrazi.

Fittingly for a charity which aims to revitalise Iranian art and culture, the evening’s entertainment featured traditional Persian dancers. Alexandra, who says she is a big fan of Persian art, flew from her home in Madrid to attend Poetry, Dance and Lyrics in the Land of Harp and Mandolins. “It was a truly beautiful and moving show,” she told us afterwards.

